Spark your Creativity and Find your Creative Community!

- [ ] Mix it up! Change your morning routine: take new routes, start the day with something different, take time to really notice what's around you, do that thing you've been wanting to do or try.

- [ ] Make space to play for 20 minutes, create badly, set a timer, no rules, just let yourself be free to experiment, draw, paint, collage, write, photograph, sing, dance, do something that gives you joy.

- [ ] Say "Yes" to something new! Take a class, get out in nature, attend an event, connect with a new person, say "yes" to something you've been afraid to try or has been attracting your interest.

- [ ] Be a sponge: Visit a museum, take in an afternoon of art and photo galleries, look at art books in the library, and absorb color, form, and aesthetic expression that will inspire you later.

- [ ] Dive in! Find 5 creators on Instagram, Substack or online that you admire and resonate with, and see how your own work could be influenced – what are the principles embedded in their creations? Why are you drawn in by their work?

Check off 3 and see what happens. Check all 5 of these off and you've shaken up your routine, your perspective, fed your creative spirit, and found some surprising, energizing freedom. Nice work!

Who are we?

Meet other creatives like you! >

Find Your Creative Community

You may work and create alone, connecting to your Muse in blissful solitude, but we all need connection for our artistic well-being as well as feeding our inspiration with new experiences.

Here are some ideas:

Join a supportive community of creatives and attend a free CreativeMornings Santa Fe monthly event. There's free coffee, breakfast treats, interesting, thought-provoking speakers, and most of all, some really fine people to know.

Pitch it! Sign up for a 30-second pitch and share about a project, event, business, or idea.

Go clubbing: CreativeMornings Clubs are small gatherings where people share a passion – whether it's artsy, educational or something unique, they're free and fun. (Maybe start your own!)

Give a damn! Get involved, volunteer and make a difference by using your talents to help with social media, monthly events, or other activities. Become part of a community that energizes you, feeds you (literally and creatively!) and truly appreciates you.

We believe EVERYONE is creative, and everyone is WELCOME here.

Our free monthly event is usually held on the 3rd Friday of each month at CCA in Santa Fe. Scan the code and register for the next one, and find out what we're all about!

Come meet us & get inspired!
